Hospitals winning superbug battle

By NEIL DOCKING

Hospitals are winning the fight against clostridium difficile bacteria after struggling to limit the number of cases in wards earlier this year.

East Lancashire Hospitals NHS Trust has a target for the current financial year of 50 cases of the superbug. During April and May the trust had experienced 13 cases, more than double its intended target of six.

This rose to 17 in June, which meant that in order to achieve its target, the trust must not exceed three to four cases per month for the rest of the year.

Since then, the number of cases has fallen drastically.

Speaking at East Lancashire Hospital's latest board meeting, Lynn Wissett, deputy chief executive, said: "I am pleased to report that for August we have had just three cases, and for September we have had just two cases, so that has taken us back onto our trajectory.

"We're still showing that we're above where we want to be because of those early numbers, but we are confident that we are back on track for this target."

Number of C-diff cases is reined in

So far, the trust has experienced 23 cases against a target of 15.

C-diff bacteria are found naturally in the gut of around two-thirds of children, and three per cent of adults. Some antibiotics used to treat other health conditions can interfere with the balance of these 'good' bacteria.

When this happens the bacteria can multiply and produce toxins, which cause illnesses such as diarrhoea and fever. In rare cases, the infection can be fatal.

The trust has outperformed last year's figures, but has struggled to meet tougher targets set this year.

George Boyer, non-executive director, said he was concerned about a possible rise in C-diff cases during the winter months.

Mrs Wissett said the trust had taken that into account when making its predictions, and that it was now putting into action a winter plan issued last month.

Real ale 'has never been more popular'

By JONATHON DILLON

Real ale is pulling in more punters in East Lancashire than ever before, according to campaigners.

John Webster, chairman of the East Lancashire branch of CAMRA, said cask ale was undergoing a revival thanks to local breweries such as Moorhouses, in Burnley, and chains such as Wetherspoons, which has pubs in Accrington and Blackburn.

The popularity of real ale has seen the organisation, which campaigns for consumers rights with respect to the beer and drinks industry, welcome its 1,000th member Steven Banks, from Trawden.

Beer enthusiasts raised a toast when they presented him with a certificate at the Bridge Bier Huis, in Burnley, to mark the milestone.

John said: "The big pub companies such as Punch, or Enterprise, have realised that real ale is their best bet to avoid bankruptcy. It is now the biggest growth area in wet sales for both companies.

"But until our governments stop using the drinks industry as a cash cow, and refrain from imposing above-inflation tax rises, and they accept that binge drinking is caused by supermarkets selling cans at below cost price, we will continue to lose two pubs per day.

"I hope the government are finally going to do something about the unfair system operated by the PubCo's whereby licencees are charged up to 45per cent more for a guest beer than a Freehouse would have to pay."

He said more young people were turning their backs on lager in favour of real ale as it was available in town centre pubs.

He added: "Love them, or hate them, Wetherspoons have changed the whole pub scene in our town centres.

"An increasing number of pubs now sell real ale. Only a few years ago the majority of town centre pubs only sold lager or keg. Now many have at least one handpump.

"There is a general trend among British people to reject mass produced food and drink."

Ribbon cut at hospice

By CHRIS GEE

Improvements to East Lancashire Hospice, Blackburn, to enhance the "comfort and dignity" of patients, have been unveiled.

Big Brother contestant and Waterloo Road star Lucien Laviscount, 19, cut the ribbon at the upgraded inpatient and day therapy unit at the Park Lee Road site.

Guests and the public toured the new facilities during an open day last week.

The £650,000 project has made the 10 patient bedrooms larger, including a separate seating area.

All now have en-suite facilities, with a wet room, and doors have been widened so patients' beds can be taken into the garden on sunny days.

Terminally-ill Patrick McCallister, a patient at the hospice for four years, spoke to about 50 guests at the launch. He said users of the services had already noticed the benefits. "I've had four stays here as an in-patient and every time the staff have been outstanding.

"These improvements mean it's much more comfortable and spacious. I didn't think it was possible, but I now feel even more secure and looked after as soon as I come through the doors."

Special guest Lucien, from Read, said he was honoured to be asked to open the refurbishment after establishing strong links with the hospice over recent years.

"The work done and dedication of the staff here blows me away," he said. "It's bright and relaxing and I'm only too glad to help."

Funding for the work was split between a grant from the Department of Health and fundraising within the East Lancashire community.

The building work was done by Oswaldtwistle firm J&C Devlin over a period of about a year.

LAUNCH: Lucien meets patient George McLean, who was being visited by Saffron and Rhiannon Zaki

Spitfire site now decided

A site has been decided for Darwen's commemorative Spitfire. The seven-metre metal sculpture will be placed outside the White Lion pub, in The Green. Darwen Mayor Paul Browne, who has been pushing for a decision, said: "That location is what most people preferred. I think the Spitfire will look fabulous where passing traffic can see it from both directions."

An installation date has still to be announced.

Tributes to soap's Betty

By PAUL COCKERTON

SAD: Antony Cotton, and William Roache, will miss Betty Driver, left

East Lancashire's Coronation Street actors have paid tribute to co-star Betty Driver who has died at the age of 91.

She had played the role of Rovers Return barmaid Betty Williams in the soap for 42 years.

Edenfield-born Antony Cotton, Sean Tully in the series, said: "Today is a very sad day. I am devastated. We've lost our Betty. She was one of the funniest people I've ever met and definitely the kindest.

"I will miss her so much. Her star shone bright and long."

Accrington-born Julie Hesmondhalgh, who plays Hayley Cropper, said: "Farewell to our Betty. They don't make them like you any more. Feel so lucky to have known you."

Former Rossendale resident William Roache, Ken Barlow since the soap began, said: "I loved Betty dearly, she was not only a colleague, she was a friend and godmother to my son James.

"She will be missed in the Street, but she will be missed more so as a warm and loving person."

Ex-Corrie actress Vicky Entwistle, who lives in the Ribble Valley and played Janice Battersby in the soap, said: "I send you a tender kiss and huge cuddle Miss Driver! Amazing, talented lady with an enormous heart."

Betty Driver, who was made an MBE in 2000, appeared in more than 2,800 episodes of Britain's favourite soap. Her character was famous for her hotpot she served at the Rovers Return, even though the actress herself never ate meat. Baxenden-based Holland's Pies produced a range of dishes under the brand Betty's Kitchen.

Traffic fears halt plan for new Co-op

By EMMA CRUCES

Fears of traffic chaos at a key Rishton junction have seen plans to open a Co-op shop there thrown out.

Hyndburn councillors scrutinising the scheme for the former Bentley garage said the increase in traffic and congestion would overwhelm the junction with Blackburn Road, which serves a number of local schools.

The Co-operative group had submitted the plans through an agent, Hurstwood Properties, who said their client was looking to open a 430-square metre store.

Initially the bid was thought to be from Tesco, leading to a local campaign among traders who feared losing business.

CONCERN: Coun Cleary

However, Hurstwood revealed the Co-operative were behind the plans in a bid to move from their current site in Rishton's High Street.

Councillors said the effect on parking and congestion would see an accident happen if the bid was approved.

At a meeting of Hyndburn planning committee, Coun Clare Cleary, who addressed the meeting on behalf of residents, said the issues regarding traffic in the area were 'plain to see'.

She said: "We have had two public meetings in Rishton and feelings are very strong on this matter.

"There are three primary schools here and traffic is already a problem. Residents are very concerned about the effect of shoppers parking on this stretch, and large lorries making deliveries here."

Speaking on behalf of the applicant, Hurstwood Properties, Steven Hartley said: "Our client is the Co-operative, not Tesco as had been rumoured. They are planning to move from their existing location in the borough to this site.

"They have a very loyal customer base, which would improve footfall here.

"The suitability of the parking we would provide in the car park has been assessed by experts and we have made those reports available".

Coun Dave Parkins said: "I can see an accident waiting to happen should we approve this.

"It just isn't in the right place.

"They are better off staying where they are it seems to me."

Councillors voted to turn down the application on the grounds of highway safety.

CARITAS CARE
Supporting and Enabling

Have you room in your home and heart?

Fostering can make a huge difference

Have you ever considered providing a family life for a child who cannot live with their own parents?

If so, have you thought of becoming a foster parent?

Fostering is a way to help a child, or young person, through a difficult period in their lives.

It is often used to offer a child, or young person, temporary care while their own parents get help sorting out problems, or take a break.

Once those problems have been resolved and it has been determined their parents are able to look after them safely, children often return home.

But for others, if that doesn't turn out to be the case, it may mean staying in long-term foster care, while some may be adopted, and others will move on to live independently.

It may be that you provide short break fostering, where disabled children, or children with special needs, or behavioural difficulties, enjoy a short stay on a pre-planned, regular basis with a new family, and their parents, or usual foster carers, have a short break for themselves.

All foster carers are registered with, and contracted to, a local authority, or voluntary, or independent, agency.

The role is to provide high-quality care for the child. All children in foster care will be looked after by a local authority and the foster carers will work in partnership with the local authority to provide this.

The foster carers may also work with other professionals, such as therapists, teachers, or doctors, to help the child to deal with emotional traumas, or physical, or learning, disabilities. Fostering agencies need a wide range of people to meet children and young people's very different needs.

There is no upper age limit, but agencies expect people to be mature enough to work with the complex problems that children needing fostering are likely to have, and fit enough to keep up with what can be a demanding task.

Responsibility is great, and so are rewards

On any one day there are more than 57,000 children living with foster families.

There are now more children than ever coming into care, with almost 6,000 more in care on any one day now than there were in 2007.

Around two-fifths of the children in care are aged 11 to 15, and finding people with the right skills to look after teenagers is now the top priority for fostering services.

Fostering provides a safe, secure and nurturing family environment, either short – or long-term, and allows children to keep in contact with their own families if they wish.

Children come into care for a whole range of reasons, including a family member's short-term illness, or a parent's depression, or drug or alcohol misuse.

Some children may have been abused, or neglected.

Foster carers can give families a chance to sort out their problems by providing children with a home and supportive family for as long as they need.

About 70per cent of children in care live with foster families.

Fostering offers the opportunity to make a huge difference to the lives of the children who need it, and can be a very rewarding experience.

Roll out the Barrowman!

Fresh from his success with Torchwood: Miracle Day, John Barrowman is about to kick off a new UK tour.

60 SECONDS WITH ... JOHN BARROWMAN

JOHN, YOU'VE HAD A BUSY YEAR, AND NOW THERE'S YOUR NEW ALBUM, UK TOUR AND UPCOMING PANTO. DO YOU EVER HAVE A DAY OFF?

People assume that I work all the time, but I do actually take some time off and also we schedule the working.

WHAT CAN WE EXPECT FROM THE TOUR?

I follow a specific format, which I've done for the last three years. Basically it's like an evening with, or a night of entertainment. I tell stories, I have my four dancers with me, my band, my mum and dad are involved in the show. I also show pictures from the last year, integrating them with stories and songs, pictures from my childhood and the past.

IS THERE A TYPICAL AUDIENCE AT A JOHN BARROWMAN GIG?

It's a great mix because we have everything from teenage girls all the way up to the nans and in-between, with boys and 'Woodies' (Torchwood fans) and 'Whovians' (Doctor Who fans), so it's a really diverse audience. The thing that I'm most proud of is people know what they're going to get when they come to see a John Barrowman show, therefore ticket sales have been doing really, really well. A lot of the venues are pretty much already sold out and that's why we had to add some dates. We're doing double time at some of the venues.

IT MUST BE FUN WORKING WITH JODIE PRENGER

Yeah, Jodie was my guest star last year and she'll be my guest star again this year. She's great to work with because she's someone that I don't have to worry about.

Angelic Rhydian

Singing sensation Rhydian Roberts has gone from 'classical to camp' with his latest role in Grease The Musical.

Starring in the smash hit and award-winning musical, the Welsh baritone will appear on stage playing the part of Teen Angel at Blackpool Opera House this month.

"I have always been a fan of Grease and this year's cast have just blown me away, it's really exciting and theatre is what I love to do. So I am just having a great time," said X Factor finalist Rhydian.

Following the release of his self-titled debut album Rhydian, the star recorded sales of more than 300,000 after four weeks – which was declared to be the highest selling album by a male chart newcomer in 2008.

He has performed with some of the world's biggest artists including the Stereophonics, Sugarbabes, Charlotte Church and Michael Buble.

His second album O Fortuna, released in 2009, went gold and was nominated at the Classical Brit Awards for Best Album of the year 2010, while his third album, Waves, was released in August.

He said: "I have been so busy since the third album tour so the musical has been quite easy for me, it's easy just performing one song but it will be lots of fun."

Since his success on the X Factor in 2007, Rhydian's career has been a success and although he has always had talent, the ITV show has pointed him towards the right direction.

"I am very proud to have been on the X Factor and it was obviously a huge part of my life and has brought so many opportunities my way. I have been watching and think that Gary Barlow is good for the show although I don't know who will win just yet – ask me again in a few weeks," said the 28-year-old.

Currently touring the UK, Grease The Musical originally opened in the West End in 1993, running for six years and the last international tour of Grease was a phenomenal success having been seen by audiences totalling more than 12 million people in the UK alone.

And Rhydian, who has made his way from screen to stage after shooting his TV series for Welsh channel SC4, will be starring as Teen Angel for six weeks.

A BRAND NEW BARRATT CHRISTMAS

Move in to a new home in time for the festive season with Barratt Manchester

The area surrounding Eccleston Park offers residents a host of leisure opportunities, with a bustling night life and an abundance of eateries to be enjoyed. Cafes and restaurants are close at hand throughout Chorley and there are plenty of options for nightlife throughout the area.

Chorley has a unique nightlife with a fantastic nightclub, Applejax and plenty of pubs, restaurants and bars throughout the town centre and the surrounding areas. Preston is close at hand to provide an alternative destination for nightlife, and features popular clubs such as multi-award winning Squires and alternative venue, Warehouse.

Chorley offers a range of leisure and tourist destinations including Astley Hall Museum and Art Gallery, the yarrow Valley Country Park and CamelotTheme Park, as well as an Odeon cinema in nearby Preston.

Chorley is famous for its markets, which date back to 1498 - the most popular market day in the Lancashire town is Tuesday. There are two main areas which make up Chorley Markets; the famous Flat Iron (sometimes known locally as the 'Cattle Market') and Chorley Covered Market, which is located in the heart of the town.

Eccleston Park is situated on Pilling lane and boasts a fantastic array of stunning homes, with designs and prices to satisfy all tastes. Whether you are seeking to own your first home or are looking to upsize into a larger family property, you are sure to find the home of your dreams at EcclestonPark.

Home of the week at Eccleston Park is plot 96, the desirable Alderney. This desirable family home is complete and ready to move in to, fully fitted with carpets, blinds, light fittings and is available with 100% part exchange opportunities.

All downstairs rooms lead off from a traditional entrance hall, which also features a conveniently located cloakroom. The lounge is spacious and leads directly out on to the rear garden through picturesque French Doors. At the opposite side of the house but still towards the front is the elegant dining room, ideal for formal dining.

Next we have the heart of the home, the large, contemporary kitchen which comes fully fitted. This modern kitchen also houses a 'family area' enabling the kids to play or even pop out through the second set of French Doors to the garden.

Upstairs are three double bedrooms plus one single bedroom. The master bedroom has exclusive use of luxury en-suite facilities whilst bedrooms two, three and four make use of the colour coordinated family bathroom.

The Alderney is currently available with a specially reduced list price of £239,995 down from £243,495 for this week only.
